

An Officer And A Gentleman Wanted: A Military Romantic Comedy

Wanted is a very funny British Comedy written in a light-hearted diary style, very loosely based on real events... Beverley Wilkins promised herself when she started working at Britannia Royal Naval College, the Royal Navys premier officer training establishment, that she would eventually become that most envied of creatures - an officers wife! She might be divorced and in her mid 40s, but it doesnt mean shes given up on romance - after all, shes seen An Officer and a Gentleman... The only problem is that so far, the only man in her life is her dog Nelson who unfortunately has a mind of his own - not for nothing was he named after Britains greatest hero. But its a new term which means new officers. Anything could happen...! If youre a fan of humorous military stories with a little bit of romance thrown in, then An Officer And A Gentleman Wanted is for you... Authors note: One or two readers have considered that Ive been over zealous in my use of parentheses, so Ive done my best to remove the majority of them. I have left a few in where I feel they add value to the story. Praise for An Officer and a Gentleman Wanted... A well written and funny insight into the life of a civilian lady in a position of authority in a Royal Naval training establishment. Nelson, her dog, has half a mind of his own, (the other half is hiding somewhere) loved by all, causes her some problems, wonderful.. This irreverent story is a mixture of vulnerable femininity, delinquent dog and an irrepressible sense of fun in a setting of stuffy tradition at one of the worlds most famous naval training establishments. Its well-written, fun and funny. Best described as Bridget Jones in a military establishment, it made me laugh out loud. Eye-wateringly funny romantic comedy, its very clever and a very easy read A rip-roaring funny romantic comedy

Fortunately for his kingdom his young queen, Bywyd was as sharp as he was dull. She advised him in all matters of state, and benevolently attended concerned citizens and visiting dignitaries alike, always with a graceful nod to her husband and a quiet "May it please your Majesty." So it was that they ruled in peace for many years troubled only by the lack of Ysbryd-ane an heir to carry on the divine dragon blood of Gwirions ancestors. When Bywyd found herself full with child at last she rejoiced that their kingdom would be secured, their rule assuredly peaceful for the rest of their lives. And when the child was born, with raven black hair so dark against eyes as blue as lightning and skin as pale as snow, they called her Eirwyn and raised her to understand the five aspects of the dragon that she must must ever personify to rule her people. Before her sixth birthday, Eirwyn was already tired of the dusty words she had learned by rote.
